Synacor

When Synacor decided to change their office environment, the goal was to change 45, 69" high private workstations into an area that promoted open collaboration and a change in their culture.

Tayco was chosen as the supplier of choice because they met Synacor's challenges of lead times, factory installation expertise, time frames for mock ups and price; while educating the client on the process every step of the way.

With Tayco's award winning post and beam system Up, Tayco has brought idealism to the workplace with open office planning, a minimized environmental footprint and innovative design, that is built around the needs of evolving workplace environments and the people in them.
