BLUE:

Shades of blue evoke feelings of calm. They also promote trust, focus and stability. Consider blue for areas of the office where attention to intricate details is vital.

GREEN:

Green is associated with feelings of balance and growth. It connects us to nature and offers a sense of peace and clarity. Try green in areas where people are balancing many different tasks to keep their minds clear.

DISCOVER

Feel the bright, energizing effect of the sun in the morning, in feelings of happiness as you start each new day.

Red & Burnt Orange:

Reds and burnt oranges bring feelings of passion and excitement. They are considered physical colours and can raise mental energy flow. Try using these shades in areas where physical work may be required.

Yellows and Oranges:

Warm colours such as yellows and oranges promote teamwork, happiness and positivity. Use shades of sunny yellow or orange in areas of the office where you want to energize your employees.

LIGHT GREY:

This color is often associated with experience and ease, and can pull your entire work space together. Use light grey in places you want to increase focus and promote collaboration.

DARK GREY:

Motivate yourself with something cool toned and mature. The contrast of grey is always aesthetically apt. Try tones of dark grey in places where motivation is your top priority.
